

HISTORY AND HONOUR ROLL – Australian Men’s Interstate Teams Matches

History

The first Australian Men’s Amateur Championship was played in 1894 between NSW and Victoria. The second Championship was played between Victoria and South Australia, while the 1906 Championship was played between Victoria, NSW and Tasmania.

It was not until 1946 that all states contested the event.

Each team consists of eight players, with all players taking part in the four foursomes, and seven players involved in the singles.

From 2007, the Women’s, Men’s and Colts Interstate Teams Matches were played concurrently in the same city.

In 2011 the foursomes matches were removed which each team contesting singles matches only. At the conclusion of the five singles rounds, team one and two play each another in a final with teams three and four, and five and six, playing off for third and fifth place respectively.
